Presents

APPLICANT TRACKING SYSTEMS AND PROCESSES

Most major corporations use an applicant tracking system (ATS) to handle job applications and to manage résumé data. Of necessity, this trend is spreading in small and mid-sized organizations as well. ATS software enables the electronic handling of recruitment functions, with capabilities that typically include data collection, data migration, and the quantification of data for reporting purposes. Every recruiter has need for a system or process of some type that allows for the accurate capturing and tracking of important recruitment data.

Our panel will share their experiences, and we hope you'll plan to be with us for this very interactive session.

Our Panel:

Fawn Williams, Staffing Consultant for Teradata Corporation
Dana Wilker, Recruiter for Midmark Corporation
Dan Burnett, Director of Recruiting for Ross Group, Inc.
Terry Black, Director of Human Resources, CDO Technologies
